AMONG THE CORAL ISLANDS.

THE TRIP OF THE ONE HUNDRED.
(BY OUR SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.)

VII.

We started for Samoa in high spirits. Samoa, in our mind's eye, was more attractive than any of the islands we had seen. Fiji was a pleasant tourist's place, but Samoa was out of the reach of ordinary voyagers. Fijians were interesting, but they were a civilized and Christianized people. British subjects like ourselves; but Samoans were children of nature. We wanted to study them in their primitive condition, as next to nothing to it. Fiji had many curiosities to offer us, but they were neither so rich nor rare as the specimens we were to get from Samoa—least we thought not. Fijians know something of the poetry of motion in their modes; but the glimpses we had of the Samoan women had whirled our desire to see more of their dances. At Samoa we might perchance bask in the sunshine of royal favour—we might press King Welioa's royal hand, and drink bairns from the royal bowl. In a word, Samoa would furnish us with that rarity—a new sensation. It was the Ultima Thule of our trip, and, like the last wind at a feast, it had been reserved till almost the last, when ordinary savage life had paled upon us.

Was talked by day and dreamed by night of what we would do at Samoa. To pass the impatient hours we put up a ball and athletic sports, which went off with wonderful zest, considering how they were overshadowed by the joys that were to come. The jumping was excellent, and the Scotch reels and Highland schottisches of two ladies of our company charmed us all. I could tell you how "New Zealand" beat the "World" in the top-of-the-world, how the sailors beat the "sailors," and how the "single" pulling and the "cock-fighting" was better than a race; but we adjourned before completing the obstacle race to complete our plans for spending next day at Samoa. We stayed up late that night anxious to sight the land, parties were made up for exploring the beauties of the island, the finishing touches were given to the manufacture of fishing lines and naturalists' nets were made ready for the morrow.

It was half-past 11 p.m. when the first note of distress was sounded. The doctor hastily knocked at the captain's cabin on the poop deck. A few of us were standing there when the consultation took place. We did not think it boded anything harmful.

"We sat outside and watched the pale stars glow in the clear tropical sky, and to the right of the little disappointment creased our minds. Now when the carpenter was roused up, and was pulling the perplexed sailor's shop to pieces we saw no sign of awakening. He was soon dismantling and putting the compasses in a severely plain style of note, but not a glimmer of the truth that it was intended for a hospital broke in upon our janglins unbound minds.

At breakfast next morning we were awoke as usual by the voices made to Prostestants at the instance of Archdeacon Stopford. They tell it their duty to meet in synod on October 25 in the name of Dr. Stopford, the Archdeacon of Canterbury, who had written the synod, a learned and sagacious man, to have the appointment of the prelates of the provinces, but he was completely overruled, the following resolution shows:—

"Resolved: That, notwithstanding the explanations so fully given by Dr. Stopford, the Archdeacon of Canterbury, it is the opinion of this synod that the system, in so far as it applies to the other provinces, is not in accordance with the principles of our Church, with the full and free exercise of episcopal authority, and therefore that the system of the provinces of our Church, which is the only one that is in accordance with the principles of the religious principles of our Church, with the safety of the religious principles of our Church, should be discontinued.

It should be mentioned also, that the Sacred Congregation of Propaganda—after years previous, viz., on the 16th January, 1841—wrote a letter to the prelates of Ireland, warning them to prevent books against the Catholic religion or in any way opposed to the Catholic faith from being taught in the national schools of Ireland, and reminding them that Catholics were not to be taught by non-Catholics in religious or moral doctrine, or even in history.

It was better, the letter remarked, that the Catholics should receive false impressions from non-Catholic teachers. The letter contains, moreover, the following words:—

"Having accurately weighed all the dangers and advantages of the system, the Sacred Congregation with the approbation of our Holy Father Pope Gregory XV, in the year 1841, has issued a judgment that is given in the matter, that it is left to the prudent discretion of each individual bishop, and be judged of by the future experience which time will supply.

The bishops and priests should however carefully watch the progress of the system, and if any thing appears which would give a bad impression, then the effect of the system will be to injure the cause of the Catholic children.

It is the opinion of the system that the Catholic children should be carefully made acquainted with it, that it may be of service to them.

They set a high value on their services in the past; they are conscious of much willing service; they are satisfied with their captains, comrades, and conditions, and cannot understand the deep distrust of the public, and the absolute demand for a new order. The most objectionable clause to them in the new regulations seems the disqualification of licensed victuallers. Three active members of volunteer companies, at the present moment, are licensed victuallers, and naturally they feel it as an act of oppression that by reason of their calling they should be called upon to resign. But is it not a question of expediency rather than wrong? Is it not a fact proved by much experience that the ordinary licensed victualler makes himself active in connection with the fire brigade, or other public organisation, out of a desire for popularity or patronage? Is it not true that broad groups of men, throughout the present instance, that this publican's calling units the members of the community? And is it not a familiar thing to see men of special calling disengaged for certain ennobled positions? Have we not seen ministers of religion debarred from sitting in Parliament, from serving even on hospital committees? The licensed victuallers are by no means alone in their prohibition. The other objections raised at the meeting are inconsiderable. If a fireman on duty desire to take a bottle of gingerbeer, it is said that under the new rules he would have to ask permission. Would not a soldier on duty be under similar restraint? Again, an objectionable rule is said to be that compelling volunteer firemen to join benefit societies. That is a measure of provocation which certainly has much in its favour, and should not provoke strong dissent. The volunteer firemen must have more valid grounds of objection than they have so far advanced if they wish to win general sympathy, and should not be aggrieved if their present position is interpreted as a chafing at the bonds of reasonable discipline rather than as justifiable protest against injustice or tyranny.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

The Recidivist question again occupies a prominent place in our cables. The Earl of Rosebery, in withdrawing the motion of which he had given notice in the House of Lords, explained that the position of the matter had greatly changed, and the policy of the bill before the French Legislature had been entirely reversed. The Pall Mall Gazette seems inclined to take a hopeful view of the situation, whilst the Globe urges the necessity for bringing the pressure of public opinion to bear upon the question, to prevent a makeshift arrangement with France. In the Sudan there have been fresh mutiny and desertion, a Turkish battalion having betrayed its trust. The Abyssinians are going to the relief of the garrison at Kassala; and as the force comprises 40,000 men, it ought to be of material assistance in suppressing the rebellious Sudanese. The British Resident at Aden is reported to have gone to annex a piece of territory on the coast of Africa, at the southern extremity of the Gulf of Aden. The Conservatives are unanimous with the motion proposed by the Earl of Warwick, for promoting a compromise between the Government and the House of Lords, in regard to the Franchise Bill, and at a meeting at the Carlton Club they resolved to oppose it. The Melbourne Harbour Trust has been very successful, the tenders being greatly in excess of the amount required, and the average price offered being £100 13s. 2d.

According to a telegram received by the Government from the Agent-General, it would appear that a ministerial resolution prevails as to the decision of the Privy Council in the case of Tooley v. Commissioners for Railways. The Privy Council has not, it would seem from this message, upheld the Supreme Court in its opinion that the use of steam tramway motors by the Government was illegal. On the contrary, it has declared their use legal, but has dismissed the appeal on the ground of negligence. The result of the appeal has consequently shown that there was no necessity for the special session of Parliament which was convened for the sole purpose of declaring the legality of the use of the steam motors. The cable message received from the Agent-General is dated London, July 14, and is in the following words:—Tooley, Privy Council decide use of steam legal, but dismiss appeal with costs on ground of negligence.

The principal matter dealt with in the Legislative Assembly last night were Mr. Stuart's resolutions having reference to the annexation of New Guinea, the federation of the Australian colonies, and the prevention of the influx of criminals. The adjourned debate on these was resumed by Mr. G. Campbell, who concluded his remarks by moving the previous question. After speeches from some other hon. gentlemen, the debate was further adjourned for a week because of the presence of only a very small number of the members of the House. The Coomaderry Roman Catholic Land Settlement Bill was read the third time, and the bill was carried through the Assembly and read the first time. The Temporary Supply Bill for July was read the second time, and its consideration in committee made an order of the day for to-day.

A very great deal of time was wasted in the Legislative Assembly yesterday in the discussion of what clauses of the Land Bill should be re-committed. It was eventually decided that the clauses to be re-committed should be Nos. 3, 4, 21, 27, 38, 35, 7, 54, and new clauses 33 and 49. The second reading of the Mining Act Amendment Bill was agreed to, on the motion of Mr. Abbott, and the bill was carried through committee with amendments.

The Hon. J. P. Abbott, Minister for Mines, is acting as Minister for Justice during the absence from Sydney of the Hon. H. E. Cohen, on his wedding tour.

For some time past Mr. M. Chapman, M.L.A., has been exerting himself to get a tramway waiting shed erected at or near the corner of the New-street road, for the accommodation of the great number of persons who use the trams on the lines to Newtown, Glebe, Forest Lodge, and Leichhardt. Yesterday he received a letter from Mr. C. A. Goodchap, Commissioner for Railways, stating that it had been decided to have the waiting shed erected as requested.

Mr. F. Abbott, M.L.A., has received a letter from the Under-Secretary of Public Works, stating that Mr. Dibbs has decided to open the Permanent bridge to the public free of charge on the 1st proximo, and that the Crown Solicitor has been requested to prepare the necessary deed of release.

A MEETING of the City Council will be held at the Town Hall to-day at 11 a.m. The notice paper contains 47 motions dealing with various matters of more or less importance relative to city improvements. Alderman John Young will move for the appointment of a committee to investigate and report on published statements adverse to the system of wood paving, and that the council should take steps to prevent the same being adopted before any thing else, perhaps in an attempt to get rid of quinine. A Federal system should be considered a perfect one; but until we get a well-ordered system for all the colonies, the aim should be to improve the means at the command of each particular colony. In at least one of these colonies recent events have been showing that there is room for improvement.

The officers and members of the United Volunteer Fire Brigades do not like the rules and regulations under which they may become registered and subsidised as volunteer fire companies. They have been discussing the rules in public meeting, and have resolved to "pledge themselves not to register under existing rules until the committee shall have furnished an approved set of rules for submission to the Fire Brigades Board." That brings about rather an awkward state, and will probably result in the disbanding of the Volunteer Fire Brigades and the establishment of a paid force, ready, obedient, and efficient. The volunteer firemen imagine, doubtless, that they have good cause of complaint.

They set a high value on their services in the past; they are conscious of much willing service; they are satisfied with their captains, comrades, and conditions, and cannot understand the deep distrust of the public, and the absolute demand for a new order. The most objectionable clause to them in the new regulations seems the disqualification of licensed victuallers. Three active members of volunteer companies, at the present moment, are licensed victuallers, and naturally they feel it as an act of oppression that by reason of their calling they should be called upon to resign. But is it not a question of expediency rather than wrong? Is it not a fact proved by much experience that the ordinary licensed victualler makes himself active in connection with the fire brigade, or other public organisation, out of a desire for popularity or patronage? Is it not true that broad groups of men, throughout the present instance, that this publican's calling units the members of the community?

The Art Society's Exhibition at the Town Hall, was very well attended yesterday, and visitors in the evening were regaled with a little music. In another column will be found a further notice of the pictures post-mortem examination and inquest will probably be held to-day.

The Argus of Tuesday states that a shock of earthquake, corresponding to time and duration with the earth tremor reported at Tasmania, occurred on the Victoria side of the Yarra's Straits on Sunday afternoon. The earth tremor was felt at Wilson's Promontory, Port Albert, Bairnsdale, and Omeo. At Port Albert, where the shock started, the residents, the earth tremor was accompanied by tidal disturbances. Earthquake shocks were also noticed at Eden, Pambula, and Carden, on the New South Wales coast. William Martin, keeper of the lighthouse at Wilson's Promontory, telegraphed as follows to the Minister of Trade and Customs:— "Wilson's Promontory, Sunday, July 13, 1884.—Felt clearly-defined shock of an earthquake at 1.43 p.m. to-day, with severe rocking motion, continuing about 12 seconds. No damage is reported." At Port Albert, the two-story building known as the Ship Hotel and Thomson's store, the shock was most severely felt, but although chairs and tables were disturbed and the doors rattled, no damage was done, and in 10 minutes all was quiet again. At the Port wharf the lifeboat swung to and fro on the davits, and the water boiled up in the iron momentary to a level with the wharf. The shock was felt in a mild degree at Tarralla and West Alberton, but only by a few persons in the suburbs of Port Albert. There was at the height that it was caused by a shock of earthquake. A shock of earthquake was also felt at Omeo on Sunday at about 2 p.m., which lasted nearly half a minute. It was accompanied by a rumbling noise, which travelled from south to north. The shock was preceded by a rapid fall of the barometer, which rose to its normal height immediately after the earthquake had passed.

CONSIDERABLE comment was made in legal circles on Monday (July 16) on the circumstance of its Justice of the Peace sitting upon the bench during the hearing of the equity appeal in the celebrated case of Mary v. the Queen. The fact that his Honor is still the Acting Governor, and as such the direct official representative of the Queen, who is the chief defendant in the suit, was generally supposed a sufficient ground for his not taking part in the proceedings, especially as he has taken no part in appeals or other court proceedings since he assumed the Acting Governorship. It has been suggested that the fact that both the other Judges on the bench have been concerned as counsel for one or more of the parties in the suit at some earlier stage, may have furnished an explanation for the apparent want of dignity on the part of his Honor; but we understand that the parties on both sides had arranged before the hearing that no objection should be raised on this account, and that the Judges had themselves been informed of this arrangement.

An acceptable addition to the ornaments of the city has been recently erected at St. Mary's gate of the Domain, in the shape of a drinking fountain presented to the citizens by the Hon. John Frazer, M.L.C. The structure consists of a pedestal of Portland stone, having four arches, which sustain composite columns, an ornate entablature, and dome-shaped roof. Within the arches is a column supporting a large piece of Scotch granite containing the four water basins, which are approached by a few broad steps. In front of the basins are the words "Aquarius" and "Aurum." On the face of the entablature, over the centre of each arch, are the following inscriptions:—Presented by John Frazer, M.L.C., to the citizens of Aden, 1884. John Hardie, Mayor." The name of Mr. Thomas Nasford, city architect, who designed the fountain, and the late Mr. L. Beveridge, who undertook its construction, appear on the blocks at the basis of two of the columns. The design is classical, and its parts are arranged with a freedom of usage, which gives a lively effect, improved by the tasteful ornamentation applied to the several portions. The fountain will probably be completed in a few days, and it will form one of the most pleasing of our public monuments. The citizens will, we are sure, readily acknowledge the well-directed liberality of the donor.

The Victorian Land Bill, which was introduced into the Legislative Assembly of that colony on the 9th instant, consists of 120 clauses. It is accompanied by a series of very beautifully executed lithograph maps of each county in the colony, so coloured and marked as to show at a glance the extent of pastoral lands, agricultural and grazing lands, land open for sale by auction, State forests, timber reserves, water reserves, and all other kinds of reserves.

"A PARK HAMMER" asks why better entrance gates are not made to Moore Park from Mount Keeney, the present structure being of a most primitive description, allowing only one person to go through at a time. He thinks that surely in a park so much used by the public better means of gates might be provided, as it looks very bad to see persons climbing over the fence in preference to waiting for their turn at the gates; and further, that when the authorities do erect proper gates they should place them opposite each other.

In reference to tobacco factories and boys, a correspondent writes to say that if some of the inspectors under the Public Schools Act would pay an occasional visit to the tobacco factories (and no doubt other places of similar employment) they would find boys of tender years working in an atmosphere not alone detrimental to physical health, but in circumstances not favourable to moral and intellectual development.

THE RECIDIVIST QUESTION.

[BY CABLE.]

[FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.]

LONDON, JULY 16.

The Earl of Rosebery, in withdrawing his motion in the House of Lords on the Recidivist question, explained that since he first gave notice of his intention to move in the matter the position had greatly changed. It would be noted that the late Governor of New Caledonia, to whom the question had been referred by the Minister, had reported unfavourably of the main object of the bill. M. Faure, French Under-Secretary for the Colonies, had also made certain demands, with the result that the whole question had been referred to a Senatorial Committee. M. Faure had conferred with the committee, and his suggestion for the restraint and compulsory labour of the recidivists it was proposed to deport had reversed the entire policy of the bill.

The Pall Mall Gazette says that Earl Granville has not yet been able to convince the French Government that Australia is really in earnest on the Recidivist question. The journal goes on to say that the action of the Earl of Rosebery and Lord Carnarvon should be welcomed, as tending to relieve the pressure, and bring about an ultimate solution of the difficulty.

The Globe urges that pressure of public opinion is required at this moment to prevent the conclusion of a makeshift arrangement with France.

A very grave charge has been preferred against William Davis, the watchhouse-keeper at Balmain. A young man named Elizabeth Smith, who was arrested, while a fugitive from her apprenticeship as a domestic servant, was placed, on the 8th instant, in a cell under Davis's care, and she has alleged that he entered the cell while she was asleep and criminally assaulted her there. The man was arrested, and the case against him was heard at the Balmain Court yesterday, and resulted in his being committed for trial at the next Criminal Court. He was refused bail, because the charge against him is a capital one. It is stated that the accused had been in the police force for 12 years, that he had acquired an excellent reputation, as well as the rank of a first-class constable, and that he had been in charge of the Balmain watchhouse for 10 years.

We are informed that a dreadful accident happened yesterday morning to a little boy, son of Mrs. Clarke, a widow residing at 31, Handie-street, Redfern. It seems that during the temporary absence of Mrs. Clarke the boy got hold of some matches, and played with them till one of them ignited and set fire to his clothes. His screams attracted the attention of the mother, who rushed into the room just as the child was enveloped in the flames. It was with some difficulty and no little danger that this poor little fellow was saved from a horrible death, and he now lies in a very precarious condition under the care of Dr. Warren, the surgeon having marked him very severely.

THE REBELLION IN THE SOUDAN.

THE AUSTRALIAN ELEVEN IN ENGLAND.

[REUTER'S SPECIAL TELEGRAM.]

LONDON, JULY 16.

The match, Australian Eleven versus Leicestershire, was resumed to-day. The weather was again unfavourable, heavy rain falling at intervals during the day, making the wicket extremely heavy. There was only a moderate attendance. The visitors went to the wicket and succeeded in putting together 175 runs, towards which Midwinter contributed 82, caught M'Donnell and Spofforth being out in a similar way for 26 and 24 respectively. The home team then commenced their second innings. The whole of their wickets fell for 64, leaving the Australians 88 to get over. This they did without the loss of a single wicket, thus being victorious with ten wickets to the good.

THE CARLTON CLUB AND THE COMPROMISE.

LONDON, JULY 16.

At a meeting of the members of the Carlton Club the question of the proposed compromise between the Gladstone Government and the House of Lords was discussed. The overtures for a compromise by Mr. Gladstone were refused. The Marquis of Salisbury, leader of the Conservative party in the House of Lords, considers that the offers made by the Government are insufficient to secure a redistribution of seats before the operation of the proposed Franchise Bill. It was resolved to oppose the motion of Earl Wemyss in favour of passing the Franchise Bill, on the condition that the Government should pledge themselves to introduce a Redistribution of Seats Bill in the autumn session.

ADELAIDE, WEDNESDAY.

The Thunderbolt, from Cardiff, with 1000 tons of railway material, arrived at Port Victoria on Tuesday. The steamer Adelais has arrived from Melbourne, bringing the secretaries of the Young Men's Christian Association of Melbourne, Sydney, Sandhurst, Queensland, and New Zealand to take part in the proceedings connected with the opening of new buildings for the Adelais association.

The Distinctive Commission met this morning, when evidence was taken with regard to the alleged perversion of the Roman Catholic faith of a boy named Joseph Reed. Several witnesses were examined, and an immense amount of correspondence between Dean Ryan and the Government was put in. Mr. Reed, chairman of the Institute Board, was also examined, and stated that any child, on attaining the age of 12 years, was allowed to choose the faith to which he or she would belong. In many instances Protestants had become Roman Catholics, and vice versa.

The Hon. R. C. Baker (Minister of Justice) himself has been shot dead in the stables at Marble Hill, having shot himself with a gun, which was lying beside him.

A report was received to-day from Bordertown, stating that a man named Jess Collins, who had been arrested by the local police on suspicion of lunacy, had developed symptoms very like smallpox. The colonial surgeon, Dr. Patterson, communicating with Dr. Penny, the local medical man, thinks the case is one of aggravated chickenpox. The man has been isolated, and precautions taken in case the disease should develop into the dreaded smallpox. Collins arrived 14 days ago by a steamer from Melbourne. He came from Dandenong.

GENERAL SUMMARY.

LONDON, JUNE 13.

A Blue Book has been published containing the correspondence between England and Holland relative to the capture of the crew of the Nisero. The Dutch Minister in London, on May 9, declined England's offer of mediation with the Rajah of Tenasserim, as English intervention would be fatal to Dutch prestige at Aceh. Lord Granville replied on May 18, expressing regret and disappointment, and pointing out that in view of the strong feeling in England on the subject this refusal would impair the friendly relations between England and the Netherlands. Lord Granville again urged Holland to accept the mediation of England in order to obtain the release of the captives and an amicable settlement of the conflict between the Dutch and the Acehnese, which was very injurious to British interests.

A debate took place in the House of Commons on the franchise Bill on the 10th instant upon Holland to accept the mediation of England in order to obtain the release of the captives and an amicable settlement of the conflict between the Dutch and the Acehnese, which was very injurious to British interests.

A debate took place in the House of Commons on the franchise Bill on the 10th instant upon the amendment of Mr. Woodhill, for extending the suffrage to women. Mr. Gladstone replied, declaring that the enfranchisement of women could not be effected by means of this course, as the present Bill was already heavily weighted, and the proposal would add half a million to the constituency. The question must be decided on its social and moral aspects and not on political and party issues. The Government would therefore strongly oppose the amendment. In a letter Lord Randolph Churchill says the Opposition are not committed to an uncompromising resistance to the franchise Bill, and they would allow it to pass if the Government would undertake not to let it take effect until the scheme of redistribution is introduced and passed.

In a recent speech delivered at the Colonial Institute Mr. W. E. Forster said that the time had gone by when Englishmen of any party would welcome the separation of England and the colonies. Patriotic men were rather desirous of strengthening the union.

Lord Granville, Foreign Secretary, sent a despatch to Mr. Egerton, at Cairo, on May 17, stating that, as the original plan for the evacuation of the Soudan had been dropped, and aggressive operations cannot be undertaken without the countenance of His Majesty's Government, General Gordon is enjoined to adopt any feasible measures for his own removal from Kharboun, together with any Egyptians who had served him faithfully. He is authorised to spend whatever is necessary for that object.

A despatch from Wady Hulud, published in the Times, confirms the report, already received from Cairo, that the deserters of the crew of the British garrison about 12 days ago. The troops fought until their ammunition was exhausted, the rebels then entered the town and numbered 1,500 Egyptian soldiers, and several hundred other persons. Hussein Kalfa Pasha was heavily wounded, and there are only fifty other survivors.

After the fall of Berber 30,000 Arabs were sent to invest Ismoula. The Clerical party in Belgium gained a great victory in the biennial Parliament elections for replacing half of the members of the Chamber of Deputies in Brussels, where for many years now Liberal have been returned. The Clerical had a large majority. The same thing occurred in Antwerp and other large towns. In the new Chamber there will be 85 Clericals and 55 Liberals. The Liberal Premier, M. Frere Orban, and his colleagues have resigned.

Serious riots occurred at Brussels, Antwerp, and other towns, where the populace sacked some of the houses of the Conservatives and Clerical notabilities, doing much damage.

Diplomatic relations are completely broken off between Servia and Bulgaria, owing to the frontier dispute and the refusal of Bulgaria to deliver up some Servian Republican refugees. It is expected that Russia and Austria will interfere and compose the dispute.

King Tawfik and suite are busily engaged visiting the sights of London. They have received many offers of hospitality, and have been entertained at supper by the members of the Savage Club. They will attend a conversation of the Colonial Institute at South Kensington Museum on June 18.

The Emperor of Germany laid the foundation of the new German Reichstag on the 9th. There was a brilliant representative assembly of German notabilities, with Prince Bismarck at their head.

The designs of territorial aggression attributed to France in Morocco have been much discussed recently. Great interest on the subject is felt in Spain and Italy, both of which Governments are determined to resist French encroachments in that direction.

THE VICTORIAN BUDGET.

MELBOURNE, WEDNESDAY.

In the Legislative Assembly this afternoon, the Hon. James S. Dods, Treasurer, made his financial statement in the Legislative Assembly to-night. He showed that the colony was in a fairly prosperous condition. The revenue was good, in spite of the remission of taxation last year. The estimated revenue for 1884 was £542,100, and for 1885 £573,467. The year 1883 commenced with a surplus of £898,300, and 1884 with a surplus of £83,660, and 1885 would commence with a surplus of £11,355. The expenditure for 1884 amounted to £539,363, and the expenditure for 1885 was estimated at £556,588, leaving an estimated surplus at the end of 1885 of £12,153. The Treasurer showed that the increased expenditure for next year was due to the interest on the loan, and votes required for education, Agent-General, Training school, post-office, the main line of railway, and cost of getting stock of wood for the manufacture of railway vans in the colony.

COUNTRY NEWS.

(BY TELEGRAPH.)

NEARCASTLE, WEDNESDAY.

A fall-in of the surface through undermining took place yesterday, at the foot of Broad-street, Tigho's Hill, so near to the house of Mr. William Daniels that the stone block of the verandah went in a fall. A horse standing by fell in also, and was with great difficulty extricated, by the aid of eight men.

Three dragoons belonging to the 2nd M. S. M. had to have a narrow escape in drowning. They were on the gangway between the vessel and the wharf when it slipped way into the water. Water police constable Hetherington got a boat out and rescued them.

The Clerical party in Newcastle had a large majority. The same thing occurred in Antwerp and other large towns. In the new Chamber there will be 85 Clericals and 55 Liberals. The Liberal Premier, M. Frere Orban, and his colleagues have resigned.

King Tawfik and suite are busily engaged visiting the sights of London. They have received many offers of hospitality, and have been entertained at supper by the members of the Savage Club. They will attend a conversation of the Colonial Institute at South Kensington Museum on June 18.

The Duke of Manchester visited the New Reform Club on Tuesday evening, accompanied by Mr. Clement Tancock. Mr. Newman, whose guest his Grace has been during the past few days, consoled the event by firing a successful shot resulting in a bonanza valued by the manager at £200.

LUCKNOW, WEDNESDAY.

The course was finished to-day, with the following results:—Miss Lorraine's Helena, first race, gold bracelet; Mr. W. C. Evans' Hector, second prize, set silver bracelets; Miss A. C. Richardson's Lydia Glimmer, Miss C. M. Lincoln's Sunbeam, Miss Moxey's Lord Clifton, and Mrs. Moroney's Reckless all take place, and prizes of silver bracelets.

FORRES, WEDNESDAY.

Some rain fell here on Monday, and it was thought at one time the races would have to be postponed. It cleared off early in the day, and the course was in excellent condition. The race was to be run on Saturday, and no uncertain result will tell us whether the meet will go on in good order. There are indications of a frost to-night.

WELLINGTON, WEDNESDAY.

A meeting was held on Monday to request the Government to commence the public works which have been promised, employment being very scarce both for artisans and labourers.

We are having splendid spring-like weather; gentle rains and no frost. Business is, however, very slow.

GOULBURN, WEDNESDAY.

The dinner to the Queensland footmen last night passed off successfully. The meet was driven through the town to-day prior to the 10th. The weather was excellent, and the horses were in fine condition.

THE AGA WAAGA, WEDNESDAY.

The Court of Quarter Sessions opened to-day to hear District Court Judge Backhouse, Mr. Pitcairn prosecuting for the Crown.

The District Court cases will commence on Friday. The last rather fatigued and unwell.

Wool is dull and cold. A slight shower fell at midday. Now the sky is dull, and it is inclined to rain.

at a much smaller cost than at present. New railways would be pushed on with as rapidly as possible. The Government required to go to the London market for a loan of £2,180,000 to redeem the debentures falling due shortly, and they would take the opportunity of making this £3,500,000, and applying the balance from the above to the completion of the Parliament House, extension of the Yen Yean in Melbourne, and other necessary works. For further railways there was already £1,000,000 available from the previous loan, and the revenue under the new Land Bill, if passed, would render another £500,000 available. So there was ample means wherewith to push on railway construction as quickly as could be attempted for some time to come. Mr. Service referred at some length to the report of the Tariff Commission, acknowledging his appreciation of its value, but pointing out directions in which the commissioners seemed to exceed their functions. When the Government were in the happy position to remit taxes, they would be glad to consider its recommendations; but now it was necessary to raise fresh taxes to the amount of £85,000, and this the Government proposed to do by increasing the duty on spirits by 2s per gallon all round, which would disturb the trade less than the re-imposition of the beer tax, and would not be quite so objectionable as the beer tax.

The twelfth Waterloo Cup run in Victoria was commenced to-day at the Oval, Diggers' Rest, in fairly good weather, the only drawback being a couple of showers in the afternoon, and a keen wind that swept down from the hills to the northward. Two special trains were run from Spencer-street. The attendance was the largest yet seen at the race, and a number of ladies were present.
